The Authority's third party site reviewer currently uses an Android based system called "Andmeazure". However, the site reviewer is not limited to just this system and may use other electronic tracking data systems.

Subject: 2015 QAP Question

Laura,

Regarding measuring distances to positive site characteristics, the 2015 QAP states that "distances less than a ½ mile are measured using electronic tracking data systems." Is there a particular physical device or smart phone/tablet application that will be used to measure this? If so, can the Authority provide specifics regarding this? We just want to ensure we are utilizing the same tool that SC Housing will be utilizing when measuring distances in this category with regards to distances less than ½ mile.

Thank you in advance for any guidance may be able to provide.

Thanks

Josh
